CARLYLE'S FREDERICK THE GREAT McGREGOR'S LOGIC.

HARPER & BROTHERS, FRANKLIN SQUARE, NEW-YORK PUBLISH THIS DAY:

McGREGOR'S SYSTEM OF LOGIC. A System of Logic. Comprising a Discussion of the various Meens of acquiring and retaining Knowledge, and avoiding Error. By F. McGazoux, A.M. Pinne, Chol., 50 cents; Sheep, 81. This treatise is the result of an attempt to comprise within moderate limits averything of general interest which properly belongs to Logic, free from profixity, obscurity, or misrepresentation. Much that eccurs in other works on the same subject, has been rejected as uncleas, irrelevant, or onetons, while the author has endsavored to supply numerous deficiencies, and to exhibit a clear and accurate view of the principles and processes of logical thought, divested of scholastic figurents, which only peoples and mislead the student.

tory of Friederich II., called Frederick the Great. By THOMAS CARLYLE. Vol. III., with Portrait and Maps, 12mo.

Thomas Caritie. Vol. III., with Portrait and Maps, 17th Cloth, et 125.

The history of Federick the Great is coming to be Carlyle's epus magnum. Frobably the history of Frederick will for ever remain one of the finest pieces of literary painting, as well as one of the most marvelous attempts at special pleading, extant in our even or any language. —London Spectator.

Mr. Carlyle is about the only living writer whose opinious are of value, even when it is impossible to agree with him. No one is more found than he of paradicx, but few men's paradores hint at so impetant truths. No one with a more autocratic dogmatism sets up strong men as heroes, or condemns the haplese poacesures of portbellies to infamy; but then his indements even where they can not be confirmed, always enforce gene weighty principle which we were in danger of forgetting. And if it sometimes happens that neither the hero nor the principles commend themselves, still the thoroughness of the execution and the fire with which all his writings are instinct.

THE MYSTERY!
MRS. WOOD'S NEW BOOK!

Equal to "The Woman in White," and superior to "East Lynne," er "Earl's Helra."

Read what the Editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin

Read what the Editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin says of it editorially in that paper:

"Mus. Wood's New Nowth.—'The Mystery,' by Mrs. Henry Wood, author of The Earl's Heir," is just published, by Messrs. Poterson & Brothers, from the manuacity purchased in advance of its appearance in England. It is the best veritten and most intensely interesting of all its writer's works, nearcely falling short of 'The Woman in Wute,' in its power of absorbing the attention of the reader. The plot is singularly original and ingenious, and 'The Mystery' is well kept up to the close. The characters are well sustained, and those of Edwin Bratley, Charlotte Delves, Emily Chandos, and Anne Hereford, who tells the stery in the autobiographical form, are well drawn and individualized. 'The Mystery' is destined to have an immense number of readers, and to add grantly to its author's reputation."

EXPECTED CAPTURE OF WASHINGTON.

THE INQUIRY INTO POPE'S CAMPAIGN ADJOURNED.

[The following appeared in a portion of our edition of yes Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Sept. 15, 1862. REPORTS BY REFUGEES FROM RICHMOND. Refugees from Richmond, who left there about a week ago, say that the Southerners were anticipating the capture of Washington by Gen. Lee sometime in the course of last week.

The city was filled with hospitals and convalescents. Only a Home Guard was doing duty within the city defences. Only three regiments were stationed on the James River.

Refugees from Fredericksburg report that a very small Rebel force is stationed there, and that there are no soldiers at Acquia Creek.

A naval officer who arrived here with his from before Charleston, yesterday, says that that place can be taken whenever the gunboats, assisted by a small land force, undertake it, there being very few troops there. As for Capt. Davis's stone blockade, it is a complete failure.

The water on the bar is as deep now at low tide as it was before the hulks were sunk at high tide. the current having forced away the obstructions and deepened the channel in so doing. A day or two the number of deaths fairly attributable to expose before this vessel sailed Charleston was illuminated so brilliantly, that the officers of the blockading fleet sadly concluded that Washington must have been taken. The battle-flag, a white cross on a blue and red ground, was plainly to be seen flying over Sumter and prominent points in the city.

CAMPAIGN. The Court of Inquiry organized to investigate the campaign of Gen. Pope and the causes of its failure, hered from 5,000 to 7,000, including cavalry, anilmet according to adjournment this morning, but did nothing except to adjourn indefinitely. It seems to be understood that it is going to do nothing.

The first day, however, they furnished upon his requisition what was needed for immediuse, amounting to about half of all they had, which was, however, not more than enough for the wound ed at Centreville. Dr. Coolidge vainly applied to Gen. Lee for per-mission to go to Washington for further supplies. Dr. Coolidge on going upon the field on Wednesday found our wounded in a state of great destitution and suffering, which he partially relieved with two wagon loads of stores, originally ours, but approprinted by the Rebels, that he had begged from the Rebel Medical Director Guild. On Thursday an ambulance of supplies, and ambulances from Washington, arrived, much to the anisfaction of the wounded and their exhausted numes. The former, Dr. Coolidge says, displayed an heroig fortitude under circumstances the most trying, and a very few of the latter remained to the last. "One wounded," says Dr. Coolidge, "were collected in 21 field infirmaries, within an area of ten miles long by seven miles wide. It was impossible to ascertain with precision the number of wounded, but from the data in my possession I estimate it to be 4,000." Dr. Coolidge comments severely upon the condoc of the ambulance drivers who stole from the wounded soldiers stores of all sorts-even blankets; tew of whom would render any assistance even in giving water or food to the helpless, or assisting them wat their ambulances. Some were drunk, many were insubordinate; others, when detected in theft, re fused to give up their spoils until forced to do so. Instructed by this experience, Dr. Coolidge recommends the organization of an ambulance corps. Dr. Coolidge closes by saving that he was assured by Gen. Pope himself on Monday night, when the evacuation of Centreville began, that none was intended, and adds, that if he had not been so assured, he should have saved the scanty supply of provisions at Centreville for the wounded by putting them under a flag of truce. But as it was, he concludes, I believe

ARRIVAL OF GEN, HUNTER.

Major-Gen, David Hunter has arrived.

DRAFTED MEN ASKING DISCHARGES.
The War Department is receiving applications from drafted men in Connecticut, the only State where drafting has yet been commenced, for discharges on the ground that the applicants are employed on manufactures for the Government. The Department refuses a discharge but excuses from military duty during the continuance of their employment, persons whose services are necessary for the execution of the contract, such as those whose part of the business requires peculiar skill and whom it would therefore be difficult to replace.

CAMP FOR CONVALENCENTS.

Maj.-Gen. Banks issues to-night his Order No. 3, which contains a provision for the organization and establishment of a camp for convalencents near this city. It required that all stragglers unable to proceed to their regiments shall be conveyed to this camp, and returned to duty when able, and furnished with arms, &c., as they may need. Officers absent from their commands without a pass are obliged to report themselves at this camp under arrest.

Born and reared in Slavery, he yet shows a faith heartily democratic, prelaiming himself in favor not only of putting down the Rebellion, but of wiping out its cause, a policy, he asserts, which will give to the Border States population, wealth, enterprise, free schools, free labor, and peace, and make a future rebellion impossible. To this policy the people of his section, he says, are rapidly inclining.
